144 Pairs of Fine Worsted Trousers made specially to order for the ...CONSUMERS' PICNIC...

Encouraged by the liberal patronage of the people we are determined to make these semi-annual "Consumers' Picnic" Sales a marked feature of our business, not alone in furnishing goods, but in fine ready-to-wear garments as well.

TO GIVE TONE

to the occasion and show the people that this sale is not a conglomeration of broken sizes of old goods and job lots we have just made up from the celebrated

GLOBE WORSTEDS

144 PAIRS OF FINE WORSTED TROUSERS, every pair of which is worth $7.00, which during this sale will be sold at $5.00. The fabric from which these trousers are cut has not been off the looms 30 days, and the style and workmanship put into them is especially admired by the young men. You cannot find a good line of up-to-date trousers cut from such fine fabric in any other store in Lawrence. SEE THE DISPLAY in our show window.

One of the handsomest bunches of sweet peas we have seen this season was left at this office by Frank Anderson, Walnut Avenue, one morning this week. It was a credit to Mr. Anderson's horticultural abilities in this year when sweet peas are not over plentiful.

New pupils are added each week to the Vacation School, which demonstrates its popularity. The nature study attracts many earnest boys, and several have made collections of the various fishes and insects. All who are interested are welcome to call any morning, except Saturday, at the Stove School.

An attractive milk wagon, with a cover, is a recent addition to the vehicles at the "Hill Farm" of the Pearson Bros. The cover certainly does not mean that the genial driver of this long established milk route is one bit less rugged and hearty than he has always been, but it must mean that he is looking for a bit more comfort on a wet day, and he is sure to have it.

A MOTHER TELLS HOW SHE SAVED HER LITTLE DAUGHTER'S LIFE.

I am the mother of eight children and have had a great deal of experience with medicines. Last summer my little daughter had the dysentery in its worst form. We thought she would die. I tried everything I could think of, but nothing seemed to do her any good. I saw by an advertisement in our paper that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was highly recommended and sent and got a bottle at once. It proved to be one of the very best medicines we ever had in the house. It saved my little daughter's life. I am anxious for every mother to know what an excellent medicine it is. Had I known it at first it would have saved me a great deal of anxiety and my little daughter much suffering. Yours truly, Mrs. Geo. F. Burdick, Liberty, R. I. For sale by Arthur Bliss, Andover, C. H. Shattuck, Ballardvale.

WEST PARISH.

Miss Florence Burt is visiting at Randolph, Mass.

Mrs. Edward F. Abbott and two children are spending the week in Medford.

The Woman's Club met at Mrs. Ida Trow's last Wednesday.

A team belonging to Fred Way was driven off from a neighbor's while left standing there about 9 o'clock Tuesday evening. Later in the night, after the police had been notified of the theft and Mr. Way had retired, some one drove the team into the owner's yard about 11 o'clock and hastily decamped. It was probably taken by some of his acquaintances in a spirit of mischief.

The Boers as Fighters.

It is usual, I know, for military men to sneer at the generalship, or want of it, which as they allege, was responsible for the Majuba disaster—these critics are wise after the event. It is forgotten that the Boers met other officers than General Colley at Bronkhorst Spruit in a number of fights about Pretoria, Potchefstroom, and other villages, and that in no case were our men and military leaders able to stand up to the enemy. At Durban, in Natal, in 1848, we got the worst of it, as we did at Doornkop, where English officers of the ordinary type commanded. The only military success which English officers can claim in a good many encounters with the Boers is the Battle of Boomplaas, fought in 1848, between the artillery and flint-lock guns. It is therefore nonsense to take refuge behind the lack of generalship of our leaders. If such factors as courage and leadership do not come into the controversy except to a very limited extent, in what direction must we look for the explanation of our defeats?

At Laing's Nek the action began by our guns dropping a few shells into the Boer lines, and, as admitted by the Boers themselves, the small loss they suffered from this fire at the summit of Majuba hill on the night of February 26, 1881. There were about 550 combatants. After leaving some companies on the road, about 400 men reached the summit, and were disposed of in various positions about the rim of the mountain. The first shots were fired about 6 o'clock and the combat went on uninterruptedly for hours. In the final stages the main body of the Boers crept to within 40 yards, and for a considerable time fusilled our troops at this distance. Many of the men fell in the subsequent flight; but when the fighting was over, at 1 o'clock, our casualties were 289 killed and wounded, while the Boers lost one killed and four wounded. At Bronkhorst we lost 120 men killed and wounded within ten minutes, the Boers losing one. In the Jameson raid our losses were about 100 killed and wounded in the actual fighting.

It is usually maintained that these Transvaal fights were fought at a disadvantage, and that our men were in each case vastly outnumbered. If we accept the Boer accounts, our forces were not outnumbered. At Majuba they say they had about 400 men. But even assuming that there were as many as 1000 Boers, the result is still extremely unsatisfactory.—African Review.

Signatures on a Wager.

"I've often heard of folks signing all manner of absurd papers without reading them," said a tenant in one of the large office blocks, "but I saw the thing demonstrated in a very startling fashion one day last week.

"A broker in an adjacent office got into an argument on the subject, and to settle a bet about it drew up a petition to Gov. Foster. It started out with a long rignmarole of a preamble, the substance of which was that Judge (naming one of the most prominent and highly respected jurists in New Orleans) was a menace to the public on account of his phenomena stupidity, and wound up by requesting the governor to order him to be hanged immediately. The whole thing was clothed in such a mass of pompous and high sounding words that it was difficult at first to catch its absurd purport, but, reduced to plain English, it was about as I have stated.

A Young Girl's Experience.

My daughter's nerves were terribly out of order. She was thin and weak; the least noise startled her, and she was wakeful at night. Before she had taken one package of Celery King the change in her was so great that she could hardly be taken for the same girl. She is rapidly growing well and strong, her complexion is perfect, and she sleeps well every night.—Mrs. Lucy McNeill, Brush Valley, Pa.

Celery King cures Constipation and all diseases of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver and Kidneys. Sold by druggists. 25c and 50c.

"Armed with this interesting document, the lawyer went the rounds of the block. 'Here's an invitation to Judge — to deliver a lecture on Roman law,' he said to every man he met. 'I want you to sign it. Shall I read it to you?' 'Good heavens! No!' the other fellow would say as soon as he glanced at the mass of writing, and down would go his signature. Incredible as it may seem, he got 44 signatures in less than two hours and won his bet, which was based on 40.

Out of the whole crowd he encountered only one man who insisted on reading the document before affixing his name. He happened to be a bitter political enemy of the judge's, and when he got through he smiled grimly. 'I'll sign that with pleasure,' he said, 'and I'm glad so many other citizens feel the same way.'

"But leaving him out, there were 43 intelligent men, lawyers, doctors, merchants, brokers, bankers, manufacturers and other representative citizens who had deliberately but unwittingly signed a petition to hang one of our judges. When some of them heard what they had done they were highly indignant, but it certainly taught them a valuable lesson. They couldn't be caught that way again."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Gen. H. G. Otis on Consul Wildman

(From the Los Angeles (Cal) Times.)

According to Maj. Zalcita, commander of Aguinaldo's cavalry, as quoted in an interview had with the Filipino officer at San Isidro on May 5, the chief basis of the trouble between the natives of the Philippines and our troops was the officiousness of Consul Wildman at Hong Kong in making promises to the Filipinos which he had no more authority from the government to make than he had to order Admiral Dewey to sail with his fleet of fighting machines in search of the north pole. This is a view of the case that the Times has taken on divers occasions and its confirmation from a Filipino source was scarcely necessary when one stops to consider the caliber and capacity of the late editor of the "Warmederland Monthly" who is acting as our consular misrepresentative at the port of Hong Kong.

It was foreseen that the appointment of this fellow Wildman was a deplorable mistake when it was made—an appointment brought about by the free silver senator from Nevada, more generally known as the "wildcat" of the Sagebrush. William M. Stewart, who is some sort of kin to the Wildman person, and his (Wildman's) action in "monkeying" with the situation respecting Aguinaldo conclusively confirms what was anticipated might occur when this feebling of a diplomat was sent abroad to fill a most important consular post at a most important juncture.

Of course this fellow Wildman had no right whatever to make promises, expressed or implied, to the Filipinos through Aguinaldo, or to do any other thing except to attend to the routine business of his office. His foolish and impudent interference in an affair demanding the tact and discretion of trained diplomats has not only caused embarrassment, no end, to this country, but has cost the nation hundreds of precious lives and untold millions of money.

It would certainly seem as if the time had arrived for a searching investigation into the conduct of this misfit official, Wildman, in connection with affairs in the far East. If, as seems already well established, this consular marplot made any promise to Aguinaldo, or "gave him to understand" that this nation would do so and so, then the speedy bouncing of Wildman is an absolute necessity of the case. Instead of editing diplomatic affairs in a position where he is supposed to edit nothing but consular reports, he should be relieved that he may return to his former occupation of editing literary hogwash and puffs of individuals in his "Warmederland" magazine, paid for at so much a line.

Wildman has outlived his usefulness in the consular service—in fact, that "usefulness" was outlived before he began his Hong Konging performances, and he should be immediately supplanted by a man who has some knowledge of official propriety, and common sense enough not to stick his nose into things that are none of his business. The pestiferous and impudent Wildman ought to go.

Copper Shares.

Safest Investment, Largest Dividends.

A portion of the full paid and non-assessable capital stock of the Boston & Texas Copper Company is offered for sale at Five Dollars per share (par $10 for Treasury purposes), and is recommended as a safe and highly promising investment.

The company controls twelve thousand acres of rich copper land in North Texas which is also valuable for farming and town site purposes. The tract is some 10 miles long and about three miles wide. It is equivalent in size to five hundred ordinary mining claims.

The property has been developed sufficiently to begin producing at once, large amounts of the richest copper ore (40 to 70 per cent.) taken out and marketed, and inexhaustible quantities of copper marl and clay running from 8 to 15 per cent. copper found. (Calumet and Hecla and other great dividend payers are working on 1 to 3 per cent. ore.)

The property is within 12 miles of a railroad and fuel and water are available. The ores and marl are on the surface and a few feet down, and can be mined and converted into copper cheaper than any other deposits in America. Copper will be produced on the ground and a plant of moderate cost will treat 300 to 500 tons of ore and material per day, and according to engineers' estimates earn $3,000 to $5,000 per day net, with copper at 15 cts per pound. It is now 18 cts. per pound.

The property has a historical reputation and a record in the State Geological Reports. It has been examined and reported upon by the highest engineering, geological and expert authorities, and its merit and value are established beyond all question. It is not an experiment, nor its value speculative, they are proven and demonstrated.

From Report of Prof. Wm. DeRue, former State Chemist of Texas.

"Such numerous outcrops of copper ore have been traced over the summit and sides of those hills that out of 12,000 acres of land which the company own, hardly a 160 acre tract should be found without ore upon the surface.

A cross-section to the depth of 15 feet was made upon the Isbell lead, and ten hours' work resulted in the raising of 6,000 lbs. of rich copper ore, averaging about 60 per cent. of copper. (Worth $360, net.)

It is easily smelted and the strata in which it is found can also be more economically excavated than other in which copper ores occur."

From Report of Prof. W. F. Cummins, former Geologist of Texas.

"In order that I might see the condition of this lode after this amount of work had been done, I employed a few hands and cleaned out the tunnels when I found a lode of copper. This is the disulphate of copper and will yield as high as 70 per cent. of copper. I drove the tunnel twenty feet further into the hill, following the lode. When I had gone about twelve feet I struck another lode of copper eighteen inches east and six inches below the second lode. In three feet more we struck another lode below the second lode. Immediately below the lower sandstone is a stratum of cupriferous marl extending the entire width of the tunnel, say four feet, and is probably much wider. This marl will yield about 15 per cent. of copper."

From Report of Prof. Gustave Westman, Mining Engineer.

"I beg to express my entire satisfaction with and confidence in the report made by Prof. W. F. Cummins.

I only had to remove one foot of earth from the surface on the three spots already mentioned in order to find large deposits bedded into the clay. After washing, this clay was found to contain 15 per cent. of copper ore of same value as above. These ores could of course be taken out and made available at a relatively small expense.

FROM REPORT OF T. BURTON EVERETT, MINING ENGINEER AND EXPERT.

Hon. EMERY H. LOW, President, and others, Boston, Mass.: Gentlemen:—There is abundant evidence of rich copper deposits, not only at the mines already opened, but at various other parts of the property, and it is my opinion that this will prove to be one of the exceptionally rich copper-bearing fields of the United States.

The ores found in these deposits are immensely rich in copper values and the cupriferous clays that are also found here in immense beds, while not as rich, will undoubtedly prove of great value on account of the cheapness with which they can be mined and reduced.

The mines are accessible at every point; the cost of mining will be very small, as the ore is not in hard formation; and there is no deep work.

I have examined the various reports made by others, and confirm them.

As far as I have been able to investigate, and I have done so carefully, I am of the opinion it is one of the richest copper fields in the country.

Very respectfully yours,

Mr. G. H. Savage, Mine Examiner of Butte, Montana, after gaining sample of ore from the property, says: "The ore is the richest in the country. If you have the field you can pay $1,000,000 dividends per year."

Major F. M. Spaulding, of Boston, and C. F. Crosby, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., who returned June 16th from an examination of the property on behalf of the Company's stockholders and intending investors, report that they found the property as represented and confirm the expert reports. They visited and examined the nine mines and explored the entire property.

The Company is thoroughly organized with substantial business men in the management. It has such extensive acreage of land, rich in copper, and so easily and cheaply mined and converted, that dividends can be earned and paid during the current year. Now is the time to make a safe and profitable investment, and those who take advantage of this opportunity to buy stock at the low price offered will reap the benefit.

Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Check or Express to Edward B. Robins, Treasurer, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass. Price $5.00 per Share, Subject to advance.

BOSTON & TEXAS COPPER CO.

The cupriferous marl situated below the sandstone, containing 15 per cent. of copper, can be estimated worth at the place at least $10.00 per ton, net."

From Report of George F. Rendall, Mining Engineer.

"It is a self-evident fact deducible from every report that on this property large bodies of copper ore exists and that hundreds of tons have been shipped of high grade ore.

That a deposit of this nature can at a very small expense be made to yield handsome profits, from all existing reports, appears not only likely but certain."

From Report of Francis Arthur Reall, Superintendent.

"This property is all right and there is all the copper you want here. I think it is the best in Texas and it seems to have been selected as such for copper. It is near the top of a water shed and the hills crop out here. I think there is oil here because there is coal. Oil has been found at Corsicana. The property is adapted to general farming purposes which seems to be very profitable here and a town could be laid out on it and a railroad built to Dundee, 12 miles, to great advantage."

The Great Boom in Copper Shares.

Copper mining has proved the safest and most profitable industry in America, and the largest and most conservative capitalists in the world have recently become large investors in copper stocks.

This company can produce copper as cheaply as any in the world. It is capitalized the lowest of any in proportion to its acreage, and at the price of copper-bearing land in Michigan ($400 per acre) containing a much less per cent. of copper, has a large value in excess of its low capitalization ($2,500,000.)

Receipts for ore and assays by the leading chemists and assayers in the country are on file in the company's offices.

The officers and directors of the company are men of the highest standing and business capacity, and include:

Hon. Emery M. Low, manufacturer, mayor of Brockton, Mass., President.

George W. Russell, Esq., paper manufacturer, Boston, Vice-President.

Maj. F. M. Spaulding, 2d Vice-President.

Col. Edward B. Robins, Boston, Treasurer.

Col. James M. Wheaton, Boston, Secretary.

Hon. Jas. W. Bennett, Ex-President Erie Telephone Co.

Only a limited amount of the stock will be sold at the price of $5.00 per share and those wishing to secure shares should act at once. As stated the stock is full paid and non-assessable. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will be advanced.

Amount of land, quantity and quality of ore, cheapness of mining and treatment, nearness to transportation, favorable climate for continuous work the year around, the increasing demand and profit in producing copper considered, the Boston and Texas Copper Company possesses unequalled advantages and affords the best kind of an investment. It can easily earn 50 per cent. per year on the price at which the stock is here offered.

Stock may be ordered through your banker or broker, or direct as below.

A PRIME INVESTMENT

BOSTON & TEXAS
COPPER COMPANY

Its Property and Management

TWELVE THOUSAND ACRES

RICH COPPER LAND.

The Boston & Texas Copper Company have twelve thousand acres of land in North Texas near the Wichita Valley railroad. It is rolling prairie, well watered, fertile and highly adapted to agriculture and stock raising. Copper was found on the property many years ago and large quantities of the richest ore in the world taken from the surface and marketed. Openings were made from time to time and copper found to exist all over the entire property. Examinations were made by eminent geologists, chemists and engineers including Prof. W. F. Cummins, Prof. William DeRue, state chemist of Texas, Prof. Jacob Ball of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, Prof. Gustave Westman of the Stockholm school of mines, Thomas B. Everett, Esq., mining engineer of Colorado and others who confirmed the state reports and practical tests of the extent and value of the deposits.

The Boston & Texas Copper Company secured the property this year and at once began active work, increasing the number of men from time to time until it now has a large number employed opening the property and taking out the ore, with the result that the farther operations extend and the more the ground is opened, the greater the deposits of copper prove to be. A section of two and a half miles long by one and a half wide has already been tested and a blanket of copper marl running from five to twenty-five per cent in copper was found to extend over the entire area, and large amounts of nugget uncovered, ranging from forty to eighty per cent pure copper. In fact, it is fast being demonstrated that this is one of the largest and most valuable properties in the world. Arrangements are now being made to lay out a town and build a railroad to the property. The people of Texas are taking a great interest in the enterprise and are giving it their cordial support.

The management of the Boston & Texas company is in excellent hands, and the interests of the stockholders are well conserved, the board of directors being one of the strongest. It comprises some of the leading and best business men in New England. Hon. Emory M. Low, president of the company, is a gentleman of large means and of the highest commercial standing. He operates two large factories employing several hundred hands. He has held important positions, and is at present mayor of Brockton.

George W. Russell, Esq., vice-president of the company, is one of the leading paper manufacturers in America and a gentleman of large wealth and great business ability.

Col. Edward B. Robbins, treasurer, is a member of the staff of the Governor of Massachusetts, a position of honor and distinction. He was formerly in the wholesale dry goods business in Boston, and occupies an enviable position in the social and business affairs of New England.

Col. James W. Wheaton, secretary, is in the paper trade, and has been associated with Mr. Russell for upwards of 30 years, and they have been the foremost manufacturers in the country. He is a first class business man.

Mr. F. M. Spalding, general manager of the company, has been identified with many large business enterprises, and connected with the paper trade for many years. He is one of the highest personal standing and a superior executive officer. He is a practical business man of large experience and great ability and is making a large success of the company by his untiring energy, capacity and intelligence.

Mr. Charles O. Crosby, another of the directors, is a member of the firm of Marshall & Crosby, manufacturers of Lowell, and one of the city's foremost men. He enjoys the confidence and respect of the entire community. He was selected by the people as one of the committee to visit, and examine the property, on which he made a most favorable report.

Mr. Preston R. Mansfield, another of the directors, is a retired cotton goods manufacturer, and one of the leading citizens of Dedham, Mass., where he holds the position of treasurer of the J. V. Abbott Company. He is also a director and treasurer in several other large companies and is a gentleman of the highest social and business standing.

Mr. Charles O. Brightman of New Bedford, Mass., one of the directors, is a large contractor and builder and one of the leading business men not only of that city but of the state. He is connected with several successful enterprises and is an exceptionally strong man.

Mr. E. A. Smith of Lowell, Mass., another director in the company, is one of the principal business men of that city, and one of the wealthiest men of the state.

Mr. Stillman Clough, also of Lowell, another director, is a retired merchant of high standing and large wealth.

The affairs of the company are in the best of hands, with one of the largest and best copper properties in the world behind it.

The company has as consulting and advising engineers: T. B. Everett of Boston, Wm. S. Gale of New Mexico and Prof. W. F. Cummins, former state geologist of Texas. Prof. Cummins has been familiar with the property for 30 years. He is engineer in charge of the work now being done on the property, which is being actively operated.—Lowell, Mass., Daily Courier, July 28, 1899.

A limited amount of stock, par value $10.00, full paid and non-assessable, is offered at $5.00 per share. Address Boston & Texas Copper Company, 511 Tremont Building, Boston.

Most of the beer drunk in Manila comes from America, and nearly all the saloons are kept by Americans. They commend their beer in advertisements of this kind: "Beware of microbes! the little microbes that do the strongest men. There are no microbes in our beer. If by accident a microbe should tumble into Hartley's beer, that microbe would reform and become an angel."

Watering Flying Engines.

Among the remarkable features of modern railway travel the one that always attracts attention is the trick of taking water by the engine while it is in motion. The American tourist has become accustomed to seeing the narrow trough, 1200 to 1400 feet long, at various dead level points along the road, and he knows that the strip of water which it contains is scooped up by the engine as it speeds over the tracks. But people from foreign countries often ask questions about the water between the tracks, and marvel when they hear the story about "drinking" the engine on the fly.

What seems a marvelous mechanical contrivance is an extremely simple thing. A pipe with a scoop end is fastened to the tender. It is C shaped, with the top end pointing into the water tank and the bottom curved under the body of the tender. By a series of levers this end may be dropped until it reaches the level of the ties.

When the engine reaches the trough the fireman drops the scoop end, which is three and one-half inches high and 12 inches wide, into the trough, which it sinks a distance of about six inches, or within an inch of the bottom. It may wobble slightly without doing any harm, because the trough is 24 inches wide.

Drop the end is all that is done, for the motion of the engine does the rest. The water rushes into the pipe and thence into the tank with a rush and force which suggests to the uninitiated the use of powerful engines.

"The most remarkable thing about the water taking scoop," said a railroad official, "is the fact that the speed of the train must be reduced when the water is taken on. It reaches the bends in the pipe with such force that if the train were allowed to go at its regular speed the metal would be seriously strained, so we reduce the speed to about 30 miles an hour and have the best results."

While the engine is passing over the trough at the rate of 30 miles an hour it takes up about 4000 gallons of water—about as much as would be contained in 100 spirit barrels.—New York Tribune

The Gopher for August.

The Gopher for August is subtitled the Amateur Championship Number and is the handsomest copy of this magazine ever published. The number is profusely illustrated and all of the plates are printed in senna brown ink, while the text matter is printed in a blue-black ink, the combination making a beautiful magazine. Other new features of the printer's art consist of instead of making head and tail-pieces, the so-called headings are placed on the sides of the pages. This gives a very artistic effect and should be seen and it will be well appreciated.

In regard to the reading matter, the Amateur Championship is described in detail and with numerous reproductions of various players in the various positions of the game. Champion Harriman is in position for the drive, ex-Champion Douglas in position for an approach shot, the noted player J. G. Thorp is in position for putting, and the noted player W. J. Travis is in position at the top of his drive. There are various other views both by pencil and camera and the story of the Championship is very complete.

Horace G. Hutchinson, the famous golfer, has another of his readable stories on the "Celebrated Golfers, Both Amateur and Professional." Rev. Richard Carwell has a story on "Sunday Golf," which is liberal and interesting. The various departments of Club Notes, Review of the Month, Notes by the Wayside, and other features are full of interest.

Summed together The Gopher has made rapid progress in the field of literature and is the worthy representative of the great field of golfers in America and fittingly represents the various associations of which it is an official organ. (Publishers, The Gopher, Boston.)

A RENOWNED PLACE—There is no beach on the Atlantic coast more widely renowned than Old Orchard, and the entire season summer meetings are held. Every convenience that is of advantage to campers is found at Old Orchard, while the natural attractions, like the beach itself, the fine bathing, the beautiful drives and walks, the cool refreshing atmosphere are themselves drawing cards of no mean importance. The great Ocean Pier is an unusual attraction which is ever cooled by ocean breezes. For a number of years the Camped Army of New England has camped there, and this season's outing lasting from August 14th to 28th will be a lively one, and the program as now arranged says that the foremost leaders of the organization will participate in the demonstration. Arrangements have been made for reduced rate round trip tickets, and information regarding them can be had at station ticket offices of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

A Cool Man.

"Who impressed you as the coolest man you ever saw?" was asked of the former land boomer, who escaped from the West and now lives a quiet life in Detroit.

"Well, this fellow I'm going to tell you about was the sheriff. According to the story, he had been on the track of a big gang of counterfeiters for months. Now the sheriff and the head of the gang were in love with the same girl, and she, not knowing what a smooth and oily villain he was, showed a preference for the counterfeiter. One afternoon he took her out for a drive. They were held up by a tough looking lot of ruffians, who were really acting under orders from their chief, and taken as prisoners to the shanty of the counterfeiters in the mountains.

"But the sheriff had suspected treachery, and shadowed the couple from the time they left the city. He managed to show himself to the girl as she looked from a little window, and she knew her bouncer. Half an hour later, while the bunch were in the midst of a noisy drinking bout, the sheriff sprang into the room with a revolver in either hand and ordered all hands up. There was the sharp click of half a dozen guns, but he stood unharmed. The girl had slyly withdrawn all the cartridges. He captured the whole outfit, and of course married the heroine. But as he stood there, facing those fierce and lawless men, he was the coolest and most determined looking fellow I ever saw."

"What were you doing in such a place?"

"Oh, didn't I mention it? That all happened on the old opera house stage at Leadville."—Detroit Free Press.

MENUS FOR A WEEK.

FOR MONDAY'S DINNER.

No mind that has any real life is a mere echo of another's thinking.

DINNER.—Bean Soup. Mutton Chops. String Beans. Lettuce Salad. Potatoes. Pickled Cabbage. Cottage Cheese. Raspberries. Cream.

RECIPE FOR PICKLED WALNUTS.—The walnut should be gathered when young and tender and soft enough to be easily pierced with a pin. Gather them in middle of the day, when sun is hot, upon them. Rub them with a coarse flannel. Make a brine from salt and water strong enough to bear an egg; let them lie in it nine days, changing the brine every other day. At length of the time take them out and wash them in cold water. Next pour over them boiling water and take them out at a time, rub them with a piece of coarse flannel and pierce them with large needle in several places. Now place them in glass jars. To every hundred walnuts allow one gallon of vinegar, one ounce of black pepper, one-half ounce of mace, one-half ounce of nutmeg. Put the spices in the vinegar and seal the jar. Boil the vinegar over water; add large tablespoonful of grated horse radish and cupful of mustard seed. Cover closely and stand in cool place.

THREE MEALS FOR TUESDAY.

The secret of success is concentration.—Olive Schreiner.

BREAKFAST.—Fruit. Scrambled Eggs. Toast. Water Cress Salad. Coffee.

DINNER.—Bean Soup. Roast of Lamb, Mint Sauce. New Potatoes. Peas. Lettuce Salad. Onions. Rice Pudding. Iced Coffee. Cream.

SUPPER.—Cold Asparagus. Butter Sauce. Fried Fish. Lettuce Sandwiches.

RICE SOUFFLE.—Three ounces of rice flour, two ounces of butter, six eggs, half pint of cream, quarter teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of onion powder, a pint of milk and a half pint of butter, beat the butter, sugar, rice flour and yolks of eggs together until light, then stir them into the egg whites.

BLACKBERRY PUDDING.—Put two inches of berries in a buttered pudding dish, then a layer of apples about half an inch thick. Sprinkle from time to time as you put in the layers with nutmeg, cinnamon, lemon juice and a very little sugar. Make a batter, using well beaten eggs, white and yolk separately, a pint of milk and a half pint of butter; pour over the fruit and bake steadily for one hour. Serve with blackberry juice and cream.

WEDNESDAY'S BREAKFAST AND DINNER.

Industry can do anything genius can do and many things which it cannot do.—Henry Ward Beecher.

BREAKFAST.—Cracked Wheat. Minced Beef on Toast. Water Cress Salad. Cream Toast. Raspberries. Coffee.

DINNER.—Cold Spring Lamb, Mint Sauce. Young Beets. Dandelion Greens. Tomato Salad. French Dressing. Baked Apples. Tea or Coffee.

BAKED APPLES.—Make a delicious dessert. Bake the apples as whole and perfect as possible, and when cooked place on a round or oval platter and top them with a spoonful of well whipped cream. An attractive dessert for a family party.

CHERRY ROLL.—Have ready a narrow sheet of puff paste spread thick with stoned cherries; roll up and place in a baking pan. Dust well with sugar and dot with bits of butter. Pour one teaspoonful of hot water in the pan and bake in hot oven until delicately brown. Serve hot with a hard cherry sauce. For the cherry sauce cream half cup of butter with heaping cupful of powdered sugar and stir in as many bruised cherries as the sauce will take without separating. The sauce should be cold when served.

TWO MEALS FOR FRIDAY.

Oh, lady nursed in pomp and pleasure! Where gat you that herpe measure?—Burns.

BREAKFAST.—Stewed Rhubarb. Fried White Fish. Creamed Potatoes. Rice. Walnuts. Water Cress Salad. Fried Bananas. Coffee.

SUPPER.—Chicken Souffle. Lettuce Sandwiches. Radishes. Tomato Salad. Pickles. Fruit. Iced Tea.

SOUFFLE OF CHICKEN.—Chop enough cold chicken fine to make one pint. Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, and when it is melted add one tablespoonful of flour and stir until perfectly smooth; add gradually one pint of heated milk and stir constantly until it reaches the boiling point; add half a cup of salt, half a cup of butter, and beat well. Let the soup cook about five minutes. Remove from fire, add salt, pepper, parsley and the chopped chicken, then the beaten yolks of three eggs. Beat the yolks of three eggs well, have well buttered baking pan ready, and heated to 200, add the whites to the mixture and bake from 20 minutes to half an hour in a rapid quick oven. It may be baked in small dishes in a quick oven.

A GOOD DINNER FOR THURSDAY.

Follow a shadow, and it will follow you; Seem to fly, and it will follow you; Love a woman, and she'll deny you; Let her alone, and she'll love you; Has not been truly said that women are but the shadows of us men?—Longfellow.

DINNER.—Cream of Lima Bean Soup. Roast Chicken. Giblet Sauce. Corn Spinach with Egg. Tomato and Lettuce Salad. French Dressing. Cherry Roll. Cheese.

CREAM OF LIMA BEAN SOUP.—One quart very young lima beans, one pint of milk, one pint of veal stock, two even tablespoonfuls of butter, one tablespoonful of flour, yolks of two eggs, salt and pepper to taste. Put the beans in a saucepan, cover with boiling water, boil 30 minutes, slowly, drain and press through a colander. Put the milk in the hot water, add the butter and salt, rub butter and flour together and add to boiling milk; stir constantly until it thickens. Now add the stock, let all boil up at once, then add the beaten yolks of the eggs.

MENUS FOR SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

Had we never loved so kindly, Had we never loved so blindly, Never met and never parted, We had never broken hearts.—Robert Burns.

SATURDAY'S BREAKFAST.—Fruit. Water Cress Salad. Fricassee of Chicken. Potatoes. Lyonnaise. Coffee.

SUNDAY'S DINNER.—Roast of Beef. New Beet Corn. Asparagus on Toast. Lettuce Salad. French Potatoes and Cream. Black Coffee. Cake.

SUPPER.—Creamed Lobster. Tomatoes. Water Cress Sandwiches. Olives. Parker House Rolls.

FROZEN PEACHES.—Whip a quart of cream as stiff as possible. Take ripe peaches, if possible, and mash them until you have about a pint of pulp, sweeten well with powdered sugar, add the cream, with as little beating as possible, but mix thoroughly, put in a freezer or a covered mold and pack well with ice. If it is to be used at night, it should be packed in ice before noon. After the first hour stir well, loosening all that has frozen and stuck to the sides and repeat at the end of the second and third hours, then let stand until ready to serve.

CREAMED LOBSTER.—One lobster, or three pounds live weight, or if tinned one of lobster, one tablespoonful of butter, half pint of milk, salt and pepper to taste. Boil lobster, if not tinned, cut into dice, put butter into frying pan, add the lobster and the milk; stir constantly until it is hot, add the mushrooms, chopped fine, salt, pepper and the lobster and stir till thoroughly heated.

FRICASSEE OF CHICKEN.—Make a white sauce in chafin dish, add the white and dark meat of a cold chicken or the left over chicken cut into large dice pieces, season with pepper and salt and cook over open fire until meat is thoroughly warmed, being careful not to burn. To make a fricassee of curry add an even teaspoonful of curry powder.

Good Cookery.

PRESERVED PEARS.

For preserved pears select the Bartlett or some other equally large and juicy variety. Use only large and perfect fruit. Peel and halve them, dropping them as soon as finished into water, into which the juice of one lemon has been squeezed (to keep them white). Pack them in jars, and to each quart jar allow one-half of a pound of sugar. When all the fruit is in the jars, put the sugar in a sauce-pan with just enough boiling water to dissolve it, and cook until like syrup. Divide this syrup between the jars, and if not enough to fill them (it seldom is), fill each to overflowing with hot water. Stand the jars in a large kettle or boiler, first placing some thin boards in the bottom to modify the direct heat. Fill the kettle with lukewarm water to within two inches of the tops of the jars, and set over the fire to boil. After the water has boiled 10 minutes, remove the cover from one of the jars and test a piece of the fruit; if it can be easily pierced (with a steel fork), it is sufficiently cooked; if not, boil a few minutes longer, then test again. When sufficiently cooked, set the kettle back where it cannot boil. Open each jar and fill it to overflowing with boiling water; fasten each top as tightly as possible, then, wrapping the hand in a dry towel, lift out the jars, give each a final twist and invert them, letting them stand in that position until cold. Tighten again before putting away.

CANNED GRAPES.

Select large grapes, not too ripe. Take carefully from the stalks so as not to break them. Rub each one carefully with a bit of cloth. Sterilize the bottles and tops by putting in cold water, raising it to the boiling point and boiling 10 minutes; let them remain in the water until needed, and do not wipe. Fill the jars with the grapes and pour over them a syrup made in the proportions of one cupful of sugar to two cupfuls of water. Place them in a kettle of cold water, with a board in the bottom for them to rest on, and the space between them filled with hay or cloths to keep them steady. Four in warm water almost up to the necks of the jars, cover and heat slowly to the boiling point. Boil five minutes; uncover, fill the jars with a little syrup which has been kept hot and seal.

BAKED WHITE FISH.

Clean and prepare the fish. Make a stuffing of one cupful of cracker or dry bread-crumbs, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one teaspoonful of chopped onion, two tablespoonfuls of chopped suet or bacon, or one large tablespoonful of butter, one-third of a teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls finely-chopped pickles, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper. If a moist stuffing is desired, add one-quarter of a cupful of milk. Bake 15 minutes to the pound, allowing an extra 10 or 15 minutes if the fish is unusually thick.

POLISH TARTLETES.

Roll some good puff paste out thin and cut it in 2½-inch squares; brush each square over with the white of an egg, then fold down the corners so that they will all meet in the center of each piece of paste; slightly press the two pieces together, brush them over with the egg; lift them over with powdered sugar; bake in a quick oven for 15 minutes. When they are done make a little hole in the center of each and fill with jam or jelly.

ECONOMICAL CHARLOTTE RUSSE.

Line a dish with stale cake cut up in small thin pieces. To make the cream, put a pint and a half of milk on the stove to boil; mix together in a bowl two-thirds of a cup of sugar, two heaping teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, a small half cup of milk, and a pinch of salt. Stir this mixture into the boiling milk and let it cook a few minutes. Flavor with orange, and when cool pour over the cake.

TOMATO CATSUP.

Wash and wipe ripe tomatoes cut in pieces and cook until soft, press through a sieve, and measure the pulp. To every gallon add four tablespoonfuls of salt, one pint of vinegar, four tablespoonfuls of ground pepper, one-half of a teaspoonful of cloves, three tablespoonfuls of ground mustard, one-half of a teaspoonful of cayenne. Boil slowly for four hours, bottle and seal.

THE ALL AROUND CHAMPION.

The all around champion athlete of the United States is J. Fred Powers of Worcester, Mass. Made such by his phenomenal performances on the grounds of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, New York, on July 4th. In the ten events of the meet he scored a total of 6203 points. He won first in putting the 16 pound shot, the running high jump, 880 yard walk, throwing 16 pound hammer, the 120 yard hurdle, running broad jump (21 feet 8½ inches); and the pole vault.

This is indeed an "all around" athletic triumph. On the morning after the Fourth, Powers arrived at his Worcester home bright and active with not a trace of fatigue and declared that he was not hard pushed in the events as a whole. His next best competitor was more than 1600 points away from him. Powers is one of the best built athletes in the country. The city of Worcester has many athletes and winners in all classes of athletic sports. An explanation of their wonderful success is had in the fact that Worcester is where the shredded wheat biscuits are made. As a training and all around food there is nothing to compare with shredded wheat and the various dishes that can be prepared with it as a basis.

Send your address on a postal, mentioning Household Column to this paper to the Shredded Wheat Co., Worcester, Mass., for a book descriptive of the biscuit and the dishes that can be prepared from them.

SPICED FRUITS, SMALL AND LARGE

During the past few years spiced fruits have advanced in popular favor. As a relish they hold a sort of half-way position between jellies and pickles, possessing more zest than the former, and less sharpness than the latter. Perhaps the ease with which they can be prepared is one recommendation to the housewife. They require, while cooking, none of the tedious skimming and clearing demanded by jellies, none of the slow processes of soaking and salting and sweetening that must be bestowed upon pickles.

Moreover, almost any kind of fruit may be spiced. The wild raspberries or blackberries that grow in the highways and hedges are as admirable for this purpose as the garden cultivated gooseberries or currants. The peaches and pears that are too small or not sufficiently well shaped to pickle or preserve, may be spiced, as may apples and cantelopes. Grapes of any variety may also be put up in the same manner, and although the labor of preparing these is greater than that involved in spicing other berries, the result is so delicious that the maker is repaid for her pains. Spiced tomatoes are also excellent, and no less appetizing than these is chutney, a compound we have borrowed from the English and modified to suit American conditions.

The expense of spicing fruit is comparatively small. Beyond the oil or sugar and fruit, the cost is trifling—a few spices and a modicum of vinegar. In the time needed for cooking they are also more economical than fruit preserved in any other way, and reference has already been made to the little labor required in their manufacture. Of this, the most serious part is the preparation of the fruit, and there is substantial comfort in the fact that this can be done in a cool corner, and the time which must be spent over the heated stove is of short duration.

SPICED BLACKBERRIES.—Six pounds of blackberries, four pounds of sugar, granulated, one pint of vinegar. Two tablespoonfuls each of ground cloves and cinnamon. Pick over the berries carefully, taking care that there are no caps or bits of stem left among them. Put fruit, sugar, spices and vinegar over the fire in a preserving kettle together, bring to a boil slowly, and after it reaches this point cook for half an hour. The spiced fruit may be put up in jelly-glasses or in pint jars. Currants, gooseberries, raspberries, may all be put up by this recipe.

SPICED GRAPES.—Any kind of grapes may be used for this purpose, but it is best to gather them while they are still a trifle under ripe. When they become very soft and juicy they are less easily handled. After they have been freed from stems, skin and seed, weigh them. To five pounds of the fruit allow four pounds of sugar, one pint of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of cinnamon and the same of cloves. Proceed as with spiced blackberries. When cherries are spiced they must be stemmed as well as stemmed.

SPICED PEACHES.—Peel, stone and slice firm peaches. They should be ripe but not soft. Weigh the fruit when prepared. To each pound of it, allow half a pound of granulated sugar, and half a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, allspice and cloves. For any quantity not exceeding six pounds allow one pint of vinegar and half a nutmeg, grated, and beyond this in the same proportion. Cook for three-quarters of an hour after the mixture has reached the boiling point. It is well to watch spiced fruits—large fruits especially—with a good deal of care for a few weeks after they are put up. If they show any signs of fermentation they should at once be put into the preserving kettle and boiled over.

Pears, apples and melons may all be put up by the preceding recipe.

SPICED TOMATOES.—Peel and slice firm tomatoes, a little under ripe. For seven pounds of these, weigh four pounds of sugar. Put together in a preserving kettle one pint of vinegar, one ounce each of whole allspice, cloves and cinnamon, and half a nutmeg, grated. Bring them to a boil and then cook for ten minutes, turn in the tomatoes, add let them come to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Cook very slowly until the mixture is thick. Put up in sealed jars.

CHUTNEY.—Six good-sized tart apples, four large tomatoes, one small onion, a clove of garlic, half a pint of vinegar, four even tablespoonfuls of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of ground ginger and a pinch of cayenne pepper.

Adding New Lustre to Andover.

Andover has a peculiar claim upon Rev. W. J. Long and it is therefore a very pleasant duty for the Townsman to pass on to those in our midst, who know him and regard him, something of the heartiness and love that has inspired his recent call to Stamford, Conn.

A warm friend of Andover and her institutions, writes most interestingly of the reception he has been given at Stamford and at New Britain, and encloses in her letter very hearty tributes paid to his preaching by all the newspapers of that section. Certainly the Stamford church has chosen most wisely in its call to Dr. Long, whose ripe scholarship, deep religious instinct, and wide knowledge of his fellow men, all seem to have made him the ideal preacher and pastor. What better picture of the man could be drawn than that which shines out from his recent poem in the Outlook which we are pleased to reprint here.

THE JUNEBUG.

Thou stupid blockhead, blundering in my face,
Is not the great world wide enough, but thou
Must quit the dusky night where thou'rt at home.

To dazzle at my lamp, and burn thy wings;
To blind thy goggle eyes with too much light,
And bang thy foolish head 'gainst everything;
Thou meddling fool! thou'rt never out of place;
No meeting's free from thy disturbing buzz;
No child too timid for thy scaring hum;
No lady's nerves too strung, nor hair too fine
For thee to tangle it with screechy claws—
There, in my ink again!

And now with pondering look and dabbled feet,
Thou scrawlest rude lines across an unstained page.

And yet, poor thing! thou dost not mean it so;
The light attracts thee and thou too wouldst know.

How like we are! This dazzling room to thee—
Why, that's the sunlit world; and we poor men
Do bang our heads 'gainst every wall of it,
And wonder why they ache. Our blundering feet

Tramp rough-shod over nerves that twinge in pain;
We meddle daily with the mysteries,
To frighten timid souls with buzzing talk
Of laws of unknown things, and life, and death;

We burn our souls in many a garish lamp;
And many a page lies stained with thoughts more rude
Than beetles' legs could draw, and less intelligent.

And yet, from out the gloom of our first flight,
The primal twilight of our ignorance,
'Twas shining of a light that called us in.

Pardon, fellow-blunderer! Mine's the fault,
Impatient of the things I do myself,
The fashion only altered. Blunderers both!
The one with open book and bruised heart,
The other with his broken wings and feet.

There, I'll blow out the light; it troubles thee;
And here's a bit of wool to dry thee on.
Rest thee a moment till thy dazed head clears;
Then (there's the window open) go in peace—
And may the gentle God, who made us both,
When next I blunder in His mighty face,
Do so with me.

Editorial Cinders.

What a delight Andover is these days. Never fresher and never more inviting in her shady drives and attractive walks, the old town is certainly a pleasant place to live in. If you don't think so, go off for a few weeks and see how happy you'll be to get back.

Editorial Cinders.

The remodelling at the engine house is being done on a most generous scale, the posts at the entrance to the yard being most impressive. Don't let us get too far removed from the old fashioned simplicity; it won't add to our town comfort and it is really an expensive taste to gratify.

Editorial Cinders.

If Supt. Lovejoy builds as good a piece of state road in the south part of the town, as the first piece of state highway the town ever built, that beginning at the Lawrence line, he will do well and deserve hearty congratulation. And by the way that first piece was built under his direction.

Editorial Cinders.

What about the Richardson field? Five months have passed and the commissioners and the owners do not seem to have gotten together yet. Meanwhile a year's dumpings from the street that ought to be filling some of the low places there without expense are enriching private land. Push it along Messrs. Park Commissioners.

Editorial Cinders.

You assume no risk when you buy Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Arthur Bliss, Andover, and C. H. Shattuck, Ballardvale, will refund your money if you are not satisfied after using it. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful remedy in use for bowel complaints and the only one that never fails. It is pleasant, safe and reliable.

Andover Boy above the Arctic Circle

The first news since November has been received from Charles L. Carpenter, who left Andover in May, 1898, in a Boston company for Alaska. Sailing from Seattle in June on a steamer of their own (the "Dorothy"), they went some three thousand miles to St. Michael's, at the mouth of the Yukon, thence seven hundred miles up that river and as much farther up that Koyukuk, a tributary of the Yukon, to Arctic City in Northern Alaska. That "city" had already been pre-empted by another Boston party, which generously gave the new company a 500-foot lot on the river bank, and allowed them the benefit of their electric light plant for the season, at rates which we wish Mr. Coleman might duplicate in Andover, viz., each man cutting one cord of wood for the dynamo!

They reached Arctic City on the Arctic Circle—Sept. 25, and had just time to get their steamer into a safe "slough" for the winter, before winter set in. Building a cabin and cache for their provisions, they separated into small parties of two or three each and went up into the tributary creeks farther north, taking outfit on dog-sledges and spending the winter in prospecting. None of the many parties on the Koyukuk River have succeeded in finding gold, and very many came out when spring allowed communication with the outside. Most of the "Dorothy" party, however, which had an outfit for two years, remain for another year of prospecting, especially in one or two "gulches" where Mr. Carpenter and his partner (who was an old miner) had found signs which seemed to favor continued work.

Mr. Carpenter spent the entire winter in a tent, perhaps 150 miles above the Circle, and although the thermometer went at times as low as 80 degrees below zero, he had been perfectly well and had never suffered from the cold. Having plenty of fresh meats and vegetables (canned), they had been protected from scurvy, the terror of arctic regions. They lost the sun from Dec. 3 to Feb. 11, "but by May," writes Mr. Carpenter, "there was practically no night, and now (June 1) it is after 11.30 p.m., and I can see the sun shining on the clouds, and it is good daylight." He adds a postscript, a few minutes later, "I think that the sun already shines brighter on the clouds, so that dawn is breaking, while I have been writing by the rays of the setting sun!"

Although far from any representatives of government, the miners govern themselves by annual "miners' meetings," at which, by arbitration or vote, claims to titles or for wages, questions of dog ownership, etc., are fairly settled. Mr. Carpenter and Dr. Abbott—a descendant of Andover, no doubt—went forty miles on a sledge to represent their company at the miners' meeting on May 1, the former being secretary of the meeting. The last news they had received from the outside world was July 21, 1898.

Cricket.

Andover, 37; Everett 25.

Andover went to Everett last Saturday and played the return game with the club of that place. Andover was not fully represented, nevertheless the team that did duty gained a very creditable victory through the batting of A. B. Saunders and Rhodes, the bowling of W. Haddon and Capt. Bruce and the good work behind the wickets of W. McDermott, who caught out three. The general work of Andover in the field was smart. Everett batted first but could make no headway against the bowling of Haddon and Bruce and the fielding of the visitors. Two runs per wicket was the rate of scoring and the whole eleven was out for 25 runs. Haddon had the remarkable average of 6 wickets for 9 runs and Bruce took 3 for 12.

Andover's inning opened badly 4 being out for 17 runs. When Rhodes joined Saunders the Everetts got a good taste of leather hunting, the score being 40 when the latter was out with 30 runs to his credit. The rest of the team did nothing, the total score reaching only 57. Rhodes played well for his 13 runs. Newman, whose deliveries had the appearance of a throw, had the best average for the Everetts, getting 6 wickets for 12 runs. In the last two innings of the Everetts against the local team, the former have scored only 39 runs.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE SOUTH

George Marland Tells of His Experiences and of Lynching Affairs in Georgia.

George Marland, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Marland of School street, returned from the South a short time ago to spend the summer in town although he may be here for a longer period. About a year ago he went to Griffin, Ga., for his health, entering the employment of his uncle, A. G. Martin, a large cotton manufacturer of that place, where he intended to learn the mill business. After working here for a considerable time, Mr. Marland went to Atlanta where he started in to learn the steam engine manufacturing business.

During his sojourn in the Southern states, Mr. Marland had a number of exciting and varied experiences. At one time, as was before related in the Townsman, he made a part of the guard who stood watch over his uncle's mill for a number of days and nights when it was expected that the property would be attacked by labor agitators opposed to the colored help employed there. He also had some interesting experiences relating to the different lynchings which took place in the vicinity during the time he was in Griffin and Atlanta. A Townsman reporter interviewed him recently and obtained a sketch of some experiences of his.

In this beautiful southern country where the magnolia blooms and lynchings are prolific, the people are of a peculiarly gentle disposition although a little hot blooded, quick to take offense and quick to resent outrages and abuse. Then they are no respecter of persons. To think with them is to act. A white man who has committed a particularly horrible crime will be as readily lynched as a negro and with no more compunction if they can get hold of him. Their inherent fairness and love of justice has led them to reserve a special tree at each place where lynchings flourish, which stands with bark full of bullets so that any one, colored or white, who has or expects to have that extremely fatal disease called "lynch-lynch," seize hold upon him, can go and gaze upon that tree and realize that there he may meet the fruit of all his earthly ambition. A particularly pleasing prospect to contemplate in this 20th century of ours, and mayhap even as he gazes he will find there the remains of one of these who so summarily met his death, stoically, as a rule, while they undergo the torture, torment of abuse, jeers and finally receive a shower of bullets from the mob which puts an end to their suffering. Lynchings are the spectacles of thousands, all men. When Sam Hose, a negro who brutally assaulted a woman after murdering her husband, was captured by the crowd who had been hunting him down, word was sent around to the different places of his capture and he was taken to Palmetto to be identified. He confessed to his crime and was taken to the selected spot, bound with chains and horribly tortured but did not utter a protest. When the match was touched to his clothing saturated with kerosene, he groaned and made such a tremendous effort that he burst the chains which bound him, whereupon his captors poured water upon him, putting out the flames. After restraining him, he was again set on fire as was also the pile of wood on which he had been placed. When he was dead the fire was extinguished and the crowd of ten thousand men who had witnessed the lynching, tore the body to pieces, carrying away parts of it for souvenirs. Four crowded special trains ran from Atlanta and one from Griffin to allow the men of these places to attend the affair. On the way back to Atlanta, the train on which Mr. Marland rode was attacked by some one who threw rocks through the car windows and his seat mate was struck in the head with one of the missiles. No one is supposed to have been present at one of these gentle little affairs; "they were on the way there," they heard the shots and got there just a few moments after it was over. Just as soon as the shooting has been done the crowd will rush off a few hundred yards and lie down, then after a few moments will come running back to the place of slaughter.

There was another lynching at Griffin while Mr. Marland was south, of a negro who had committed an assault on a 14-year old girl employed on a farm over in another county. A crowd of 200 men took him from the sheriff after he had been captured and strung him up on the special tree. Mr. Marland got to the spot just after the affair was over, of course. He says the laws are very lax in the South. In one case, early last winter, two men got into a drunken row close to his uncle's house and one man killed the other. At the trial the facts came out that it was a case of kill or be killed and the murderer was liberated. At another time a man was fined $300 or 30 days in the chain gang, for some offense. He went down on Nassau street, hunked up a negro and paid him $10 to work out his time for him on the chain gang. It is even said that a man sentenced to death for murder paid another man a certain amount to take his place; the law had been satisfied.

The whites are not quite as liable to be lynched as the blacks, since they are almost always give themselves up and once in the jail at Atlanta, which is made of chilled steel, very thick, it would defy all efforts to remove them. They are brought to trial and suffer the full penalty of the law. The chain gang is one of the southern institutions which would be a good thing in the north if it could be introduced. Convicts and even common drunks are chained by the ankles and made to go out on the highway to work. A common drunk is often given five or ten days' labor in the chain gang.

Mr. Marland says that bicycle dealers in a small way do not flourish down there as they have placed a tax of $100 on every kind of wheel sold, so that if one wanted to sell second-hand bicycles of several different kinds he would have to pay $100 for the privilege of selling each kind. This would hardly be profitable for small dealers and they are thereby driven out of business, leaving the field open to the big dealers.

These are only a few of Mr. Marland's impressions of life in the South, which has another side more pleasant than the one here presented.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our most sincere thanks to all the neighbors, friends and shopmates who have been so considerate and kind in the ministrations to us during our late affliction.

MISS MARGIE WARNOCK.

Obituary.

CHARLES M. ABBOTT.

Charles M. Abbott, a former well known resident of this place, died at the City Hospital, Boston, Wednesday night, as the result of an accident received while riding his bicycle last Monday evening. His daughter, Mrs. Henry N. Allen and grandson, of Dorchester, with Mr. Abbott were out on their bicycles, when the latter in trying to avoid a lady cyclist, was run into by a carriage and the shaft entered his abdomen. He was taken to the Hospital but all efforts were unavailing to save his life.

The deceased was born in Andover in the West Parish about 64 years ago, living here and carrying on his occupation of a farmer, until about fifteen years since when he removed to California. Mr. Abbott returned from the West within a year and since that time has been living with his daughter, Mrs. Allen, in Dorchester.

The deceased married Miss Helen K. Smith, a sister of John L. Smith of High street, and his two children, Marietta and Emma, are by this first wife. Some time after his first wife's death, he married Miss Emily Chickering, who died during his absence in California. He is survived by his daughters, Mrs. Marietta Mason, of New York, and Mrs. Emma Allen, of Dorchester; by two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Ward of Frye Village, Mrs. Maria Hardy, of Boston, and a brother, Varnum Abbott, of Dedham.

MISS ALICE RIDEN.

The death of Miss Alice Riden, daughter of Mrs. Alice Riden, of 85 North Main Street, occurred after her late home nearly a year ago, after an illness of nearly a year, aged eighteen years and eleven months. The deceased was born in Lowell where she resided until four years ago, when the family moved to Andover. Miss Riden was for awhile employed in the Tye Rubber shop. She was a member of Christ Church and was a favorite among her shopmates and neighbors. She leaves her mother and a sister, Mrs. Margie Warnock.

The funeral was held from the house Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Torbert, acting rector at Christ Church, officiating. Messrs. Alvin Tough, William B. Morrissy, George A. Carter and Frank S. Carter were the pall bearers. The floral tributes were most beautiful. Burial was in the West Parish Cemetery.

TEN MILES AWHEEL

Some Things That May Be Seen on an Andover Bicycle Trip.

No. 5.

A Jaunt Awheel to Mill's Hill, North Andover.

Tuesday morning was the time chosen by the Townsman reporter for the ride to Mill's Hill, North Andover, which was to constitute the fifth of the series of trips on the bicycle an account of which is now appearing each week in the Townsman. A most perfect day it was, cool to the verge of uncomfortableness in the early hours, clear as crystal the atmosphere, bright the sun and brisk from the northwest was blowing a refreshing wind. Take the advice of all experienced bicyclists, however, and begin your ride in the early, delightful hours of the morning before the sun has climbed to its highest position in the sky or wait until, just before the sun commences to drop rapidly into the west, finally to sink into its glowing, radiant cradle behind the hills, the lengthening shadows, portend that evening and darkness is at hand. Then one can ride with a degree of comfort not experienced in the middle hours of the day; then nature itself is approached more readily and presents itself clothed in its best.

We were unexpectedly favored on this morning of our ride by weather conditions peculiar, or at least unexpected, at this time of the year when "dog days" are due with their accompaniment of heat, sultriness and general discomfort. Starting about half past eight o'clock, mounting our chameleons wheels we left the Square and pedaled up South Main street, that historic old thoroughfare, redolent with associations of bygone days; shaded with ancient elms and lined with houses which are linked into Andover's history with an almost imperishable chain. Here at the corner of East Chestnut street and Main is the Joseph Richardson house in the front of which, then occupied by Stephen Linamore, the Free Church was organized, May 7, 1846, as a protest against American slavery; again on the corner of Punchard avenue (once called "Universalist Court") on the same side of the street where the residence of Dr. J. F. Richards' now stands, is the site of the Universalist Church, 1839-1865, used afterwards as a grammar school by the town.

Across on the opposite side of Main street is the Deacon Amos Blanchard house built in 1810, and now the residence of Dr. Selah Merrill, the present U. S. consul at Jerusalem. A little farther up the street we pass "Chaps" or more definitely the store of Ovid Chapman. This building was once the "Town School," occupying a position on the corner of School and Central streets, south of Christ Church. Next we pass that spot which was the birthplace of one of the grandest songs ever sung in any land or language, "America." This house, now the residence of Mrs. Samuel W. Blunt, is the third on the right up the hill from Morton street and it was in the northeast front room of this house in February, 1832, that Samuel F. Smith, a student at the Theological Seminary, wrote the words of that inspiring song. We turned at Chapel avenue on the corner of which once stood the Stone Academy from 1830-1864 and next passed the "Samaritan house" built by the "Samaritan Society" in 1824, the former home of many learned doctors and professors and now the residence of Dr. C. F. Bancroft, principal of Phillips Academy. In this house Mrs. Stowe wrote the Key to Uncle Tom's Cabin. Then comes the Mansion House, or as it was once called, the "stone house," built in 1828 as a carpenter's shop for the use of the Theological students; residence of Professor Stowe, 1853-1864. Here Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote several of her later works.

Close by is the home of Fred M. Hill superintendent of the Phillips Academy farm, from whose lawn one can obtain a most beautiful view of the lower portion of the village and of Lawrence. Rabbit's Pond, a pretty ledge and the Andover Golf Club's links are delightfully located in the foreground close at hand.

Riding up the path in the rear of Bartlett hall, we stopped for a moment midway to glance over to the nearby cemetery where we could see the shaft of Mrs. Stowe's monument, then remounting continued our way to Salem street. On the right as we emerged on Salem street, is the "Adams House," built in 1805, now the residence of Prof. Graves. Around the corner from Chapel avenue we turned, and rode up Salem street. Between Chapel avenue and where the Highland road crosses Salem street, the "Berry House" is located on the left hand side. During the Revolutionary times this house was known as the Blunt tavern. It is now the residence of Miss Dora S. Berry.

Crossing the Highland road, Salem street turns slightly to the right while the Highland road, which we will meet again shortly, dips down over a little hill to the left, passing the farm lands of Phillips Academy. Just before reaching the back road running from South Main street, across Salem to the North Andover line, we pass a very old house on the right which formerly stood on the opposite side of the street. It was sold to William Hawley in 1803 and Rev. Dr. William Goodell, the famous missionary, boarded here in 1811. This house, now the residence of A. M. Davis, is said by the Artist Bellows, to be the most picturesque house in Andover.

At the corner of the back road or "Dinah's road," as it is variously called, we turned our wheels to the left and rode down this almost lane to Highland road. It is told by the residents of that section of the town that many years ago there lived on this back road, an aged colored couple—Dinah, for whom the road was named, and her husband who lived to be over a hundred years old. It is said, Dinah kept pigs and one of her sayings, which is repeated by the aforesaid residents of that section who do not vouch for its veracity, however, is that she "hope dat dar'll be shoats a' runnin' round in der nex wurl whill'll be all roasted, an a cryin' 'com eat me, com eat me,' and ther taters 'll be so thick ther that they'll say 'lay over, lay over.'" A beautiful gray squirrel ran across the road ahead of our wheels about opposite the pretty ledge among the trees on the left just before the road emerges from the enclosure of woodland upon the Highland road. He jumped nimbly from tree to tree and soon disappeared from our sight.

We rode on and soon reached the entrance to the Carter estate on the left and rode up the driveway to obtain the view from the summit of the hill, then continued our ride down to the Chestnut street extension and turning to the right again regained the Highland road. Shortly after, the Downing place was passed on the right and a few moments later we rode over the boundary line into North Andover. We took the next turning and soon reached the Simonds place where we stopped to pay the old people a call. Mr. and Mrs. Simonds should have celebrated their golden anniversary this year and would have done so had it not been for an accident to their son about the time they had intended to celebrate. After a very interesting conversation, we took our leave and continued along the way, and taking the next left hand road, passed the residence of George Rea in front of whose place are some noble chestnut trees; we stopped to admire the picture formed by some haymakers at work in a meadow with machine and scythe, while to one side was the hood of boards with trimmed saplings as standards. On one side the meadow was encompassed by thick woods, by the road on the other and at the end opposite from where we stood rose the sunlit summit of Boston hill. It was a subject fit for artist's brush or photographer's skill.

Arriving at the entrance to the driveway leading to the residence on the summit of Mill's hill we dismounted, preferring to walk rather than attempt to ride up to the summit. Signs along the side of the road request visitors to keep to the driveway, a request that any one who receives the privilege of a visit to the top of the hill should be only too glad to follow. Winding to some extent, the road finally emerges on the top of the eminence at the side of the house which fronts to the west. It is a pretty and picturesque home commanding a view second to none in this vicinity.

What an indescribably lovely prospect there was depicted before us that clear-cut of August mornings! Beautiful, fertile farms and pasture lands, groves, cities, villages, mills and shops, all softened into further beauty by distance. And everywhere hills! Apparently not one broad level spot within our outlook. Here and there, working in fields and meadows below us, we catch an occasional glimpse of the laborers and sometimes a faint shout is wafted to our ears. See the dark-lined, snow-capped clouds extending like marching battalions around the horizon; as yet they reach not far up into the blue sky above us but they are rushing along carried forward by a strong wind cold from their contact with the high summits of the distant White Mountains. Bright sunlight plays over the hills and valleys; now one portion of the landscape is darkened by a shadow soon dispelled.

Many and varied are the buildings and places to be seen from this spot. Here close at hand are the "Hill Crest," the Sutton residence; there beyond is the Haverhill water tower; in the distance we see portions of towns in lower New Hampshire. Then again there is the Johnson High school building showing among the trees; a little farther to the left, the steeple of the Congregational church in North Andover village. A little higher up as we raise our eyes to Prospect hill, Lawrence; Seale's mansion, Methuen, while along the course of the Merrimack river, stretches a long line of mills. Back of them are the houses, churches and public buildings of various natures. Tower hill with the water tower is included in the prospect, as at its foot, the pumping station and a stretch of the Merrimack river shows with Glen Forest upon its bank a short distance up. Away on the horizon, old Mt. Monadnock, dim, distant, hazy, shrouded by clouds, shows its head above Temple mountain, while a little more to the right is the twin mountain, Uncanonus. Lowell chimneys and a few houses appear to the left and also the tall chimney at the Tewksbury almshouse. The West Parish church spire makes a white spot against the forest. From where we stood Mt. Wachusett loomed up, the highest peak in the New England State. From this high mountain around to the southeast, the sky line is most regular, presenting a marked contrast to the dentate line of the other direction. The village of Andover with its churches, schools, public institutions and residences is overlooked from our position close at hand to our left.

To the northeast our gaze falls on a patch of Lake Cochichewick, blue and rippling, with the farm houses of several well known wealthy land owners on the opposite shore. More to the east is Woodchuck hill, the Dauvers Insane asylum, Boston and Prospect hills. We even thought we could locate the Newburyport water tower at least eighteen miles away in the east.

After we had admired the view to our fill and taken a picture which did not begin to depict the beauties included in its scope but was taken mainly for the cloud effect, we mounted the bicycles and coasted down the hill keeping them well under control, turned to the right and after passing the pretty Clarke mansion on the right, soon came out on the main road between North Andover and Andover and it was not long before we dismounted in the Square, having traversed about eight and one-half miles. By the route which the writer chose for his course to the hill, the distance travelled was somewhat over five miles, but it is a most pleasant way of getting there.

Everything points to a large attendance and a very successful excursion to Lynn beach next Tuesday, Aug. 15. Considerable interest and excitement is manifested in regard to the sports and races. It is reported that a large number of our young ladies intend wearing their sunbonnets.

Seventy-three relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kibbee attended their Crystal Wedding held last Monday evening at their home on Lowell street. Relatives were present from Methuen, Malden, Haverhill and Cambridge. Mrs. Ella C. Page of Methuen composed a very appropriate poem for the occasion which was read in an exceptionally able manner by Mrs. Millie Hammond. Mrs. Clara Lovejoy sang, and played on the piano. Miss M. Louise Hammond gave a recitation. Almon Moody sang. Games were played and refreshments served. A very pleasant social evening was enjoyed by all present.

Last Tuesday morning the dance hall and pavilion at Shawheen Grove were totally destroyed by fire. Loss $3000, fully insured. The J. P. Bradlee Hose Company responded quickly to the alarm of fire, but the flames had acquired such headway that nothing could save the ill-fated buildings. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, but as yet no clue to the culprit has been found. Isn't it about time that our Town Fathers took some action that would reveal the guilty parties and place them in the hands of the law?

About forty of the local Epworth Leaguers and their friends attended the lawn party at the Parker street Methodist church, South Lawrence, last Wednesday evening. They received a very warm and hearty reception. The following program was rendered by the local leaguers in a very able manner: Piano solo, Joseph Stott; violin solo, Games; recitation, Miss M. Louise Hammond; recitation, Miss Quencie Clukey; vocal solo, Miss Alice Hinton; recitation, Miss Pearl Nason; entertainment by the "Peak Sisters." Ice cream was served and a very pleasant social evening was enjoyed by all.

Letters Never Received.

There are approximately 5,000,000 letters a year which either do not reach their destination at all or reach it through the medium of the dead letter office in Washington, says the New York Sun. It is popularly supposed that the larger number of dead letters are either misdirected or have undeliverable addresses or are forwarded with insufficient postage. The fact of the matter, as is shown by the post-office reports, is that the larger number of letters sent in one year to the dead letter office go there because the persons to whom they are sent are not at the addresses given or refuse the letters. The number of letters without address sent in the mails amounts to only about 28,000 in a year, while the number of letters misdirected amounts in a year to about 310,000, of which only 10,000 are after the revision of the address, returned to the office as undeliverable. A very considerable number of undelivered letters are those coming under the official designation of hotel matter. These letters sent to hotels are not delivered, the transient guests having gone away, and so they go back to the dead letter office to the number of nearly 200,000 in a year. Then there are the letters sent to fictitious addresses, to the number of 65,000 in a year; letters sent to foreign countries and returned to the United States to the number of 140,000 in a year. The foreign letters sent to persons in the United States, but undelivered here, to the number of 400,000; the letters sent direct to the dead letter office, under the theory that by this means the addresses may be found, to the number of 4000 in a year; and the miscellaneous letters which are properly addressed but remain uncalled for. The number of letters destroyed in a year in the dead letter office amounts to about 3,000,000.

MORNING HEADACHE.

A general feeling of malaise in the morning, accompanied by more or less headache, is well known to most of us.

The expression "I've got a head on me this morning," well defines the symptoms which are almost invariably due to retention in the system of a small amount of the uric acid and allied products formed during the hours of sleep and not properly excreted. It is the forerunner of a gouty or rheumatic attack.

Tartaric acid is just the remedy for this condition. Two tablets in a goblet of water, not iced will clear the head; start up the action of the kidneys, and freshen up wonderfully. The dose should be taken before breakfast.

Drove Enemy.

George A. Morris, 17th U. S. Infantry, has written to a sister in this city of a brilliant charge on Filipinos by soldiers of that command in which he took part during the engagement at San Fernando. Two letters have been received from dated at San Fernando. In these he writes in part:

Dear Sister—I suppose by this time you have read of the attack on this town and the way we drove the niggers back. But you ought to have seen it. It would make you feel proud that you live in that great country, and under the only flag that flies.

It was our day to relieve Company A on the south line. We had breakfast at 4, and just as the sun was coming over the bamboo, the niggers opened fire. Our company was awaiting the word to fall in and we were listening to the firing on the north line, which was not anything unusual, as it takes place every morning. When all of a sudden the Mausers and Remingtons began to sing from all around the south line. We had to fall in and go to the relief of Company A. They were quartered in the freight house of the railroad at the town of Santo Tamas, which was deserted on the first invasion of the Americans.

Just below the town of San Fernando are two of the strongest kind of trenches, and there are barracks across the road about a half mile from the town. The niggers had a perfect range on us at a distance of 700 yards, while the shelter of the trenches; while we had the high and unsheltered road to go over. We started down the road and were fast out of the shelter of the houses and doing double-time across the open country, when our first man was shot. He was hit in the calf of the leg, the bullet lodging in the bone.

We had to travel 900 yards before we got to the next shelter of houses, and I tell you, but we were singing pretty thick around us. It was a miracle that no more were hit. We halted at the next shelter to get our wind and then across the open area we started again on double times, through the cornfield, up on to the railroad and down the other side into a rice field. Then the bullets began to come from the front.

The niggers were in plain view, and the captain took 38 men and charged across an open field 500 yards by bushes. A young fellow by the name of Beaudreau, belonging to Fitchburg, was shot through the forearm. He was next man to me. At the same time the captain pulled out his sword and gave the order "Fix bayonets!" and then "Charge!"

And what a charge! Yelling at the full capacity of our lungs and running and shooting as fast as we could, we came down on the niggers, as if the devil was behind us. They could not stand it and did not stop running until they were out of sight. I think they are running yet.

Our captain said it was as brilliant a charge as ever took place in the present campaign. There were fully 500 niggers in front of us and we killed 55 of them. It only took 25 minutes from the time we left the railroad until we stood on the bank of the river with the niggers in full retreat.

They pulled up the railroad and cut the telegraph wires between Alapit and this town and had one of the best planned attacks of the campaign, but we were too quick for them. Aguinaldo himself was in command and his cavalry escort charged Company A at the freight house. The company held the cavalry off until they got down to 20 rounds, when we arrived at the scene and vanquished the niggers.

We got the thanks of the division general, McArthur, and also of the governor general for it. The captain said that he would not be afraid to charge four regiments with the same men.

We have been under orders to turn out at a moment's notice even since, as the niggers are thick on the north line. The general estimates that there are 20,000 around the town at the present time.

They buried the dead niggers in a cemetery just back of our quarters, and such a sight I never saw. There were heads off, arms off, and legs off. It was horrible. Sherman says "War is hell," and he tells the truth.

All the volunteers have been relieved by regulars now, and the Springfield will not be heard any more breaking the stillness of the night. The only thing that can be heard at night since the 16th are mosquitoes. By the way, I have been making a special study of mosquitoes, and I have found a new kind. The natives call it the "clug."

It is a cross between a large red ant and a bumble-bee, and it has the same vicious habits of both multiplied by ten. There is also the locust, which keeps up a steady hum from sunrise to sunset. The noise they make is just like a lot of spinning frames in operation.

It rains here steady now from morning until night, and then starts again and rains till morning; and such mud! If we haven't got it here, it isn't anywhere. The natives are keeping pretty still at present, and the troops do not bother them; so things are pretty slow. I will close now, as I have to be vaccinated. This makes seven times since I enlisted. Every time it heals we have got to be cut again. I have mailed some papers and a silk handkerchief. With best regards and love for all, I remain, Your Brother,

George A. Morris.

RIDING PARK RACES.

Many of those who were to race at the Riding park Saturday failed to appear, but there were some events of interest.

A mile open bicycle race resulted in a victory for Mose Cookson, William Dudley of Haverhill taking second.

The mile local was won by Henry Champey and Cookson was second. The five-mile tandem pursuit race, participated in by Hobbs and Cookson on one tandem and Hollman and Cyr on the other, resulted in a victory for the former. Fred Thompson's horse won the match race in two straight heats.

L. L. & H. CONDUCTOR HURT.

William Fitzgerald of this city who is employed as conductor on the L. L. & H. street railway, met with a severe accident in Haverhill last Saturday afternoon. He was bound for Lawrence on the car that left Haverhill at 3 p. m., and while in the act of alighting in a fare, the cord broke and he lost his balance.

He instantly fell to the ground and landed very heavily in a pile of stones and dirt. The car was stopped as soon as possible and the injured man was picked up. He was found to be in a serious condition and was quickly driven by Wm. Russell to the office of Dr. Clement Fitzgerald, received bruises about the face and a bad cut on his upper lip. One stitch was taken in the latter and the injured man was sent to his home.

HIS HEAD CRUSHED.

A very sad affair occurred Monday evening at about 8.30, under the Salem street bridge. Benjamin LeFavour who is fireman on shifter 230, under Charles F. Maxwell as engineer, came in contact with a switch frame and was instantly killed. He had just finished his work and on coming from the round house where he had banked his fire and washed up, boarded a passing freight train to ride to the South depot. As the train drew under the bridge, LeFavour who was standing upon the iron step of a freight car, by leaning out too far, met his death. The first to arrive on the scene of the accident was "Nat" Jones, brakeman on the freight train number 317, under Engineer Edward L. Thomas, but he found that assistance was unnecessary. The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of Conlin & Ryan, where the remains were reviewed by Assistant Medical Examiner Dow. Word of the accident was immediately sent to his folks in Haverhill who reside on White street and they arrived in this city last night. The body will be taken to Haverhill for interment. LeFavour, who was about 21 years of age, of medium build, and dark complexion, was a graduate of the Haverhill High school and the adopted son of H. C. Fairbanks with whom he has resided since his parents' death which occurred when he was quite young. He had been in the employ of the Boston & Maine R. R. less than three months but in the short space of time had made himself very popular with his fellow workmen by his even temperament and genial disposition. He took his meals at Harvey Grant's on South Broadway and roomed at the house of Mrs. Nellie Hartwick, 10 Bailey street. The deceased was a young man of a fine character and exemplary habits. His very sudden death will be keenly felt by his many friends in Haverhill.

The greatest care should be given to any little sore, pimple or scratch which shows no disposition to heal under ordinary treatment. No one can tell how soon these will develop into Cancer of the worst type. Many people die from Cancer simply because they do not know just what the disease is; they naturally turn themselves over to the doctors, and are forced to submit to a cruel and dangerous operation, and even more violent and destructive than before. Cancer is a deadly poison in the blood, and an operation, plaster, or other external treatment can have no effect whatever upon it. The cure must come from within—the last vestige of poison must be eradicated.

Mr. Wm. Walpole, of Walshtown, S. D., says: "A little blotch about the size of a pea came under my left eye, gradually growing larger, from which shooting pains at intervals ran in all directions. I became greatly alarmed and consulted a good doctor, who pronounced it Cancer, and advised that it be cut out, but this I could not consent to. I read in my local paper of a cure effected by S. S. S., and decided to try it. It acted like a charm. The Cancer becoming at first irritated, and then discharging very freely. This gradually grew less and then discontinued altogether, leaving a small scab which soon dropped off, and now only a healthy little scar remains where what threatened to destroy my life once held full sway. Positively the only cure for Cancer is Swift's Specific."

S. S. S. FOR THE BLOOD

—because it is the only remedy which can go deep enough to reach the root of the disease and force it out of the system permanently. A surgical operation does not reach the blood—the real seat of the disease—because the blood can not be cut away. Insist upon S. S. S.; nothing can take its place.

S. S. S. cures also any case of Scrofula, Eczema, Rheumatism, Contagious Blood Poison, Ulcers, Sores, or any other form of blood disease. Valuable books on Cancer and Blood Diseases will be mailed free to any address by Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

COUNTY NOTES.

Three Lynn scorchers were fined $10 each in the Lynn police court Saturday.

The report of the Amesbury police for the month of July shows but 12 arrests.

The annual picnic of the Irish Benevolent society of Lowell will be held at Nahant beach, Wednesday.

The new Haverhill Gas Securities Co. has increased the capital of the Haverhill Gas company from $75,000 to $100,000.

The house of W. S. Dorset of Byfield was entered while the family was at church Friday night, and looted of its silverware.

Hiram Wagner, a well known resident of Amesbury, died Wednesday morning, aged 73.

An Armenian attempted to carry a Haverhill woman up a side street Sunday night, but her screams scared him so that he let her go.

The house of C. F. Whittemore at Ferry hill, Gloucester, was set afire by a gasoline vapor stove Saturday, and $300 damage was done.

Jerry Daley, employed by a Haverhill fruiterer, got his arm caught in the cog wheel of an ice cream freezer, Friday, and had the flesh and ligaments terribly torn.

G. McSergeant broke the record of the golf links of the Essex Country club at Manchester, Saturday afternoon, making 81 gross. The best previous score was made last season by Clay A. Pierce, 84 gross.

Deer have made their appearance in Amesbury and vicinity. Hardly a day passes but one or more are seen in the pastures. Some of them are reported to be quite tame.

There were six burglaries in Newburyport last week. Thursday night the house of Waldo B. Smith was entered and a lot of jewelry and $15 in money were stolen.

John J. Sheehan, state inspector of factories, last Friday found a dozen of men chindry working in Georgetown shops contrary to the law pertaining thereto.

The last vestiges of the "Pitcher house" in which lived the famous Bill Pitcher, the "Prophetess of Lynn," have disappeared. The old building has been demolished.

Adam Winowske, an employee at the General Electric company's river works, sustained a severe injury to his right leg Saturday, by a heavy wheel falling upon it. He was taken to the hospital.

The residence of L. P. Long at Haverhill was burglarized Friday night and about $5 stolen. Entrance was gained by way of the back door, and none of the family knew of the robbery until morning.

The house of Mrs. William T. Merchant, Gloucester, was visited by burglars Thursday, and about $40 in money, besides valuables, the property of boarders, were taken. Mrs. Merchant was in the kitchen when the thieves went upstairs and ransacked the rooms.

The report that a big ocean liner was ashore at Long beach, Gloucester, caused much excitement in that city yesterday. The foundation for the story was that the U. S. S. Dolphin had anchored near the shore. She had nearly run on the rocks in the fog. The Dolphin was recently badly injured in a collision in New York harbor.

If present negotiations do not miscarry, the largest of the Lynn brick-making plants will pass into the control of the brick trust. An offer has been made ex-Alderman George O. Blakely for his plant and an option has been given. The trust is said to be capitalized at $50,000,000.

The old Middle street church building in Newburyport, formerly used by the Universalist society, but for the past year used as a mortuary factory by E. H. Tingley, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday. It was owned by E. P. Shaw. Several firemen were injured by falling glass. The damage done amounted to $10,000.

During a quarrel between Isaac A. Burnham of Essex and Chester L. Perkins, Benjamin Ingersoll and George Proctor, last Friday night, Burnham received a kick in the groin and waterhouse matted. At the Gloucester police court, Ingersoll was sent down for three months and the other two were fined $10 each. All appealed.

SALEM, Aug. 7.—While workmen were engaged in tearing down the ancient structure at 22 Norman street, at 10 a. m., Saturday, the chimney unexpectedly gave way and fell, the greater portion of the bricks falling against the west side of the two and one-half story building at 30 Norman street.

The bricks crushed in the wall and partially buried Philip Korman, who was at work mending a shoe. His head and nose was cut and right arm bruised. His escape from death was miraculous.

Upstairs in the same building Mrs. Julius Millet lay in bed sick. Her front room was nearly filled with brick and mortar. She escaped bodily injury, but was greatly shocked.

The damage to the building is estimated at $1000.

TAPE WORMS

"A tape worm eighteen feet long, at least came out the anus after my taking two CASCARETS. This I am sure has caused my bad health for the past three years. I am still taking Cascarets, the only cathartic worthy of notice by sensible people."

OUTPOST DUTY.

Private Nicholas Gearin, Co. D, 22d U. S. Infantry, has written to a sister, Mrs. Kate Nevins, of 204 Lawrence street, from San Luis, Philippine islands, under date of June 29. He said in part:

"I am leading a very monotonous life just at present. It is a regular round of guard duty with a few rough firing. We make it unpleasant for us. The insurgents are all around here. We can see their campfires from the outpost and we don't know what hour or minute they will make another attack. I know if I had my way I would go and give them battle but I think the Americans are going to let them do the advancing during the rainy season. There is just as much danger here on outpost as on the firing line, with none of the excitement you see on the line. On the latter it is just the same as a game of football. You do not realize the danger you are in. Here it is different. You are out about a mile from your company on the watch and every now and then a bullet will go whizzing by your ear. The orders are not to fire until you can see somebody to shoot at. We are present quartered in the Catholic church. I have become pretty well acquainted with the Filipino priest. He is a fine looking man. I am picking up Spanish first rate with him. If I was going to be stationed here any length of time I would have it down pat. I would like to pull through without being bit again as I would like to take part in every engagement my regiment is in. I have found an anti-air much hardship as the best of it. I am with such a light man in the company. I followed Gen. Lawton on the greatest march that has been made in these islands and when it was over, I was right there. I see in the papers there is much talk in the United States about these people. Well, I will tell you the more I see of them the better I like them. They aren't as uncivilized as the people you will find in the slums of the cities in the states and as for intelligence they are far ahead of people in the Southern states."

"I am stationed in a town by the name of San Luis on the Rio Grande river. A gun boat patrols the river night and day. May 20, I was in a pretty hard fight for about two or three hours in a town named Baliguan and on the Sunday following we knelt down at the same altar together as I was brothers. That is the beauty of Catholic religion. No matter where you go it is just the same."

WANAMAKER TO THE "VETS."

The following letter has been received from John Wanamaker in relation to the approaching G. A. R. trip:

Col. John H. Russell, G. A. R. Post No. 39, G. A. R. Lawrence, Mass.

Dear Sir—As your Post will visit Philadelphia on the occasion of the Thirty-third National Encampment and Reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic, September 4th to 8th, we take pleasure in extending to its members and their friends the courtesies and freedom of our hotel.

Having set apart a special suite of rooms, including resting and reading rooms, supplied with daily papers and popular periodicals, also Correspondence Rooms and Post-offices with Telegraphic and Telephonic facilities, and Package Rooms where all Baggage, Bundles, Umbrellas or Satchels will be cared for,—we shall do all that in our power lies to ensure you a most comfortable and enjoyable sojourn in our old Liberty-Bell city.

Guides will be at your service to conduct you through the store and assist in any way possible. Very truly yours, JOHN WANAMAKER.

A GOOD TIME AT A DELIGHTFUL PLACE—Ocean Park is one of the most popular outing places on the New England coast, and why should it not be? One of the reasons is the numerous attractions that are to be found there. The grove where the meetings are held is prettily situated, and healthful surroundings is but one of its important features. Ocean Park is but a short distance from the great Ocean Pier and bathing beach, and there is never a time when dullness prevails. An assembly and woman's convention is to be held at Ocean Park August 10th to 19th, inclusive, and for the event low rate tickets are on sale at many of the Boston & Maine ticket offices.

There was great fun at Kiltbach, Switzerland, a short time ago. A prisoner escaped from the jail, and the warden let out about 50 convicts to hunt for him. The people of the town supplied intoxicants to the prisoners, and they became so gloriously fuddled, that they were unable to find the fugitive, and had to be escorted back to the jail. One of the curiosities of the bank of England is to be seen in the printing room. A man sits at a desk, an every three seconds a machine delivers to him two complete 25 notes. If he sits there six hours he receives over $350,000, and in 300 days over $100,000,000.

Perhaps a clearer idea of the world's consumption of beer cannot be realized than was conveyed in a recent statement that the quantity annually used would form a lake 3 1/2 miles long, a mile wide and six feet deep. The value of this lake is $1,800,000,000.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

Cures Every Form of Inflammation; INTERNAL as much as EXTERNAL. The real danger from every known ailment of mankind is caused by inflammation. Cure the inflammation and you cure the disease. Inflammation is manifested outwardly by redness, swelling and heat. Inwardly by congestion of the blood vessels, growth of unhealthy tissue, pain, fever and disease, as asthma, eczema, burns, bruises, bronchitis, colds, coughs, croup, catarrhs, chapped lips, sore throat, grippe, mange, muscular aches.

Originated by an old Family Physician in 1810. Could a remedy have existed for over eighty years unless it has cured many families? There is no doubt in our minds today, which has the confidence of two pauc to so great an extent as this Anodyne.

Car Book on INFLAMMATION mailed free. The Doctor's signature and directions on every bottle. 5c. all druggists. Price, 25c. each. Six bottles, $2.50. L. S. JOHNSON & CO., 21 Custom House St., Boston.

BAILEY-BAYLEY.

Seventh Annual Gathering of the Association held at Willow Lake, yesterday.

Although the Merrimac is always attractive on a cloudy day, Thursday's trip up to Lowell with the crows cawing and the cattle lying down in the fields early in the day, cast a shadow on the spirit, and the prospect ahead for a return along the Nashua-line suffering from an overdose of cold water.

Orphan picnic and all sorts of outings came shivering home later, on this typical New England dog day, but the Bailey clans I feel sure were the best defended against chills, if there is anything in the new belief that one is all right, if he only thinks so.

Willowdale Pavilion was in fine order and a good dinner well served as usual with special restaurant fare to dyspeptics counted seventy-five perhaps, while as many more had the basket lunch.

The sociability of the gathering was marked as the rain kept the party from scattering about the grounds after adjournment.

William Wallace Bailey had died in June, and Dudley P. Bailey of Everett, president for the day. Later he was chosen president for 1899-1900 with the following staff of officers:

Vice-presidents—Edwin A. Bayley of Lexington, George Edson Bailey of Mansfield, Horace W. Bailey of Newbury, Vt., William H. Rand of South Weymouth, Mrs. Milton Ellsworth of Rowley.

Secretary—Hollis R. Bailey. Treasurer—James R. Bailey of Rowley.

Auditor—John L. Bailey of Newton. Executive committee—Eben H. Bailey of Boston, Dr. Alfred Bayley of Lowell, Dr. Stephen G. Bailey of Lowell, Harrison Bailey of Fitchburg, Mrs. Edward M. Bailey of Ashland.

The report of the committee on genealogical progress was of great interest to an outsider in quest of Bailey traits.

The first printed record of the Baileys was contributed by Alfred Poore of Groveland, on the line of Richard of Rowley to the columns of our Andover Advertiser in 1868, and reset by W. F. Draper, in "Researches of the Merrimack Valley," a valuable work of the aged historian of the Poore family. He has a wonderful collection of manuscripts relating to Essex county families who all seem to hold him in loving remembrance. In 1896 Hollis R. Bailey of Andover began to work on his own line of James Bailey and to the energy and devotion of this brother of our late gifted historian, who has inherited the same powers for good thorough work, we owe the volume of 400 pages shortly to be issued, that introduces more of the wandering Bailey tribes to the public for the small price of $2. This book is to do the work required to call in the remaining material hidden away in family and other inaccessible records.

For a complete and final larger work the association is banded together and this solvent corporation (by treasurer's report) now numbers about 300 members scattered over the Union, all ready for the new certificates of membership adopted at the meeting on Thursday with motto, pedigree and purposes of organization duly set forth. The cost of printing was promptly defrayed by the contributions of the party.

A letter was read from Henry of Seitate, a descendant of Thomas J. Weymouth and the death recorded of Henry Bailey of Boston, aged 85, born in No. Seitate and dying on the ancestral homestead there held by family since 1670. George Edson Bailey of Mansfield, who with a gentleman I feel sure is William H. Rand, has collected the data on the Weymouth line, said that as he was in the line of only sons for several generations and thought he was the only Bailey till he paid his first visit to the gathering. Another cousin reported missionaries from the Weymouth line to Africa and Sandwich islands, and the Ohio poetess in the annual contribution forwarded for the day displayed imperial tendencies and Republican backbone enough.

pricking of the thumbs caused by the Democratic apologies for our Filipino mission work.

To Mrs. Edw. M. Bailey, we owe the careful revision of the Andover lineages of the Weymouth family, and to the work done on John of Salisbury. These ladies besides are most efficient in the executive work of the association. Eben H. Bailey was assisted by a member of his family in rendering two fine musical selections, and the address of Horace W. Bailey of Newbury, Vt., was full of points to awaken renewed research—in accounting for the tender age of 12 assigned to the father of a family with a landed estate and a reputation for a grand case of Richard J. Rowley (The poetry of this and other ancestors did not always prevent them using the proper means to dodge the inspectors of emigration of 1639). Mr. Bailey wants a war record for the Weymouth line in colonial days (no doubt of which service) and reports Newbury, Vt., in the late Spanish war with a population of 2000 and 21 volunteers, eight of whom were Baileys.

Edw. Bailey of Somerville read a beautiful tribute to the memory of the late president, a Nashua lawyer, born in Hopkinton, N. H., whose business and official career in Nashua added weight to his Christian profession and his rank as a 32nd degree Mason.

The announcement was made of the death of Isaac Hazleton Bailey, born in 1819, trained by his widowed mother and launched in New York business life at 14. The self-made successful leather merchant retired to build up the "Shoe and Leather Reporter" till his death in full vigor at 80, last March when Col. Ingersoll paid his old friend the last tribute of affection and followed him shortly to the reunion of bewildered homesick souls beyond who are saying "Why did we let this old fellow go?"

A sensitive temperament cannot escape the feeling in such gatherings that the ancestry are all with us and though the Tylers were the jolliest set I ever met, somehow the Bailey earnestness of purpose sends one back flying to duty unperformed and wondering what the Poor patriachs will contribute later this month to the impulses for good. If such syndicates could be formed for historical work in other families in time one would have the material here in Andover for a grand "Historical Association" in which the two parishes and South Lawrence could be included. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Roache, Misses Helen E. Roache, Miss Isabel Roache and Andrew Paul have returned from a sojourn of two weeks at Salisbury beach.

Capt. Thomas Stevens of the steamship "Catalonia" of the Cunard line has made copies of the "Log" recently taken on the journey across the sea. The paper contains a record of the route, the distance made each day and the latitude and longitude taken during the trip. One of the transcriptions he has sent to Hon. N. P. Frye and the other to T. A. Emmons of the loom harness shop, Lawrence, both of whom were passengers on his boat. Mr. Frye's log has been on his boat. Mr. Frye's log has been on his boat. Mr. Frye's log has been on his boat.
